

STATE  WASHINGTON	COUNTY  King	TOWN OR VICINITY Seattle (Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition Grounds, now Univ. of Washington Campus) MM 6d
INDEX NUMBER  WASH 17-SEAT, 1	MONUMENT  Hoo Hoo House
REPRESENTED IN NEGATIVE FILE	H.A.B.S. SURVEY NO. WASH-148	History - Erected in 1909 as building 19 of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition by the Hoo Hoo Club, a national fraternity of men engaged in the lumber business, as a club house and exhibition space. It later served as a faculty club for the University of Washington until demolished in 1959. Description - Two stories, of wood frame construction; exterior walls of stucco panels (over)
PUBLISHED PHOTOGRAPHS
PUBLISHED DRAWINGS

between exposed structural wood timbers, some set as "X" pattern cross-bracing; low pitch, deep overhanging gable roof. Located at the crest of a ridge overlooking Lake Washington.

References - "The Hoo Hoo House at the A.-Y.-P. Exposition," Pacific Builder and Engineer, Vol. 7, No. 24 (June 12, 1909), pp. 234-236. James F. O'Gorman, "The Hoo Hoo House. . .," Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians, Vol. XIX (October 1960), pp. 123-125.

Author of Card - James F. O'Gorman, 122 West Franklin Street, Urbana, Illinois--March 1961